

Everyone has a story to tell...

Peter Dunn is a professional artist who lives on the Limestone Coast. Finding his own sense of purpose through creativity has been a long slow process for him and taught him many life lessons.

One of the highlights of Peter's creative journey to date has been the production of a wall Mural in Millicent in 2015 which features images from the local wetlands known as Lake McIntyre.

Using visual images and background stories he tells of how producing this mural proved to be significant both for himself and members of the wider community.

In telling part of his own creative journey Peter aims to encourage others also :-

" Whatever our background has been, whatever our beginnings we possess the unique gift of being ourselves, that no-one else can be. Our story matters, and in telling our story we begin to own it and not take our life, our journey, for granted. "
